1. On 30 October 1951, Giovanna Bocalini Barcellona departed for Venice to lead a group of 19 women from the Unione Donne Italiane (UDI; Italian Women's Union) and the Associazione Nazionale Partigiani d'Italia (ANPI; National Association of Italian Partisans) as a delegation to the Soviet Union departing from Italy on 1 November 1951. The group is allegedly attending a course on "Marxist politico-ideological formation."
2. On 26 October 1951, a delegation from the Italia-USSR Association left Italy to attend the October Revolution celebrations held in Moscow. Italian Communist Party Deputy Mario Alicata headed the delegation.
